Passion for Pottery

September 1 through October 1, 2024

Reception: September 13 from 6 to 8 p.m.

As a ceramist, Christopher Isles '77 meshes together functionality and design. His inspiration comes from both traditional and contemporary Japanese, Korean and Chinese design. His work reflects the acceptance of transience and imperfection. Ceramics can break and are imperfect. Chris' creative process involves a delicate balance between control and letting go. His passion for pottery is not just about creating beautiful objects, but also about cultivating a deeper connection with himself. Chris inspires others to connect with themselves, find beauty in imperfection and serve spaghetti carbonara in a functional bowl.
